INTRODUCTION

The Anti-Vax Movement has a hidden agenda to save the planet by cutting down on the number of people on it. An investigation by the JDO indicates that many of the White leaders of this regressive Anti-Vaccination Movement led by Robert F. Kennedy Jr. have racist hidden agendas to dissuade the parents of African American boys not to give them the MMR shots thereby exposing them to these diseases and their consequences. There is the racket element to the anti-Vaccination crowd: Shaking down parents for bogus treatments and meaningless speeches, appearing as an expert witness at Vaccine trials, getting grants from Mr. and Mrs. Big knowing all the while that there is no cure to autism.

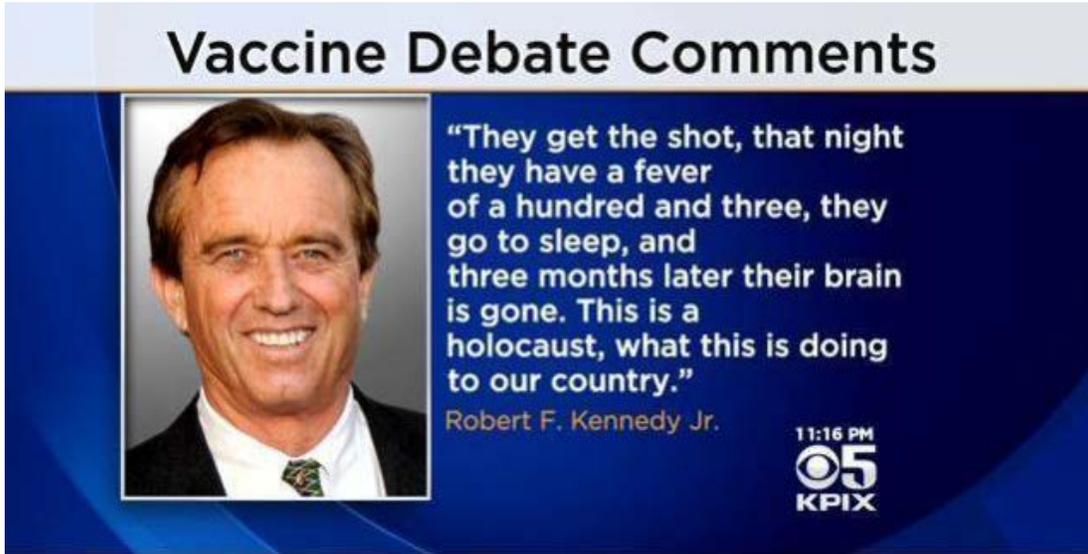

Another element involves sadism. Many of the bogus treatments that never work involve inflicting pain on the autistic child at the insistence of his parents. It's sort of a round-about way of punishing the kid for being autistic and not having to admit to yourself what you are doing.

This book exposes an alliance of ignorance, greed, sadism and the deliberate spread of disease that is beyond belief. Bill Gates summed it up: The anti-vaccination movement is "an absolute lie that has killed thousands of kids." Robert Kennedy Jr. is a disgrace to humanity who without the name Kennedy, would a failed attorney.

CHAPTER ONE

ROBERT F. KENNEDY JR.

ECO FASCIST

THE ANTI-VAXXERS LIKE TO USE TERMS FROM THE MASS MURDER OF JEWS IN ORDER TO DENIGRATE ITS IMPORTANCE.

Eco fascists use the pretense of being environmental saviors to justify “the new austerity” they wish to impose on the world; really a form of genocide against those who can’t afford increases in food and energy costs.

The Yellow Jackets or Yellow Vests in France began to spread as a response to French President Emmanuel Macron's choice to increase taxes on diesel and gasoline, for the sake of spreading his agenda focused on forcing people to Go Green or Go to Hell, even at the cost of alienating the country's middle and lower class citizens.

François De Rugy, 44, is a long-time politician and environmentalist. First elected to parliament in 2007 with the European Greens, he quit the party in 2015, criticizing its "leftist drift" under the presidency of François Hollande. He founded his own green party that same year but joined Macron's La République En Marche party in 2016. De Rugy was appointed environment minister in September 2018 after serving as parliament speaker for just over a year. De Rugby drifted to the right and became Macron's Eco-fascist lieutenant. De Rugy is best known for his lobster tail and Grande Cru wine dinners which he held at State's expense.

In the United States the Eco-Fascist leader is the disease spreading maggot Robert Kennedy Jr. who suffers from spasmodic dysphonia a nervous disorder. It causes involuntary spasms in the muscles of the voice box or larynx. This causes the voice to break, and have a tight, strained, or strangled sound. Spasmodic dysphonia can cause problems ranging from trouble saying a word or two to being not able to talk at all, which would benefit a lot of children who are going to get sick due to his evil actions. Many RFK YouTube viewers commented that the sound of the video was awful when in reality it was the result of RFK's neurological disorder.

Spasmodic dysphonia is a life-long condition. Stress can make spasms worse. Speech sounds are strained and full of effort. The exact cause of spasmodic dysphonia is not known. A nervous system disorder is thought to cause most cases. They may happen along with other movement disorders. Researchers think it may be caused by a problem in the basal ganglia of the brain. This is the area that helps coordinate muscle movement. Spasmodic dysphonia may be inherited. It indicates there is something radically wrong with Robert F. Kennedy Jr. brain or what is left of it.

Junior is a graduate of Harvard University. He studied at the London School of Economics and received his law degree from the University Of Virginia Law School. Following graduation he attended Pace University Law School, where he was awarded a Masters in Environmental Law. He is a Clinical Professor and Supervising Attorney at Pace University School of Law's Environmental Litigation Clinic. It is these credentials, awarded to him largely because his father is a saint in liberal Democratic circles that makes this nut job so dangerous.

Another indication of Junior's eco-fascistic tendencies is that he wants to lock up those who deny climate change:

I think climate deniers should be in jail. I think they should be enjoying three hots and a cot at the Hague with all the other war criminals who are there ... I think they are selling out the public trust. Those guys are doing the Koch Brothers bidding and are against all the evidence of the rational mind, saying global warming does not exist. They are contemptible human beings. I wish there were a law you could punish them with. I don't think there is a law that you can punish those politicians under but I think that Koch Brothers should be prosecuted for reckless endangering. Absolutely. That's a criminal offense and they ought to be serving time for it.

RFK Junior missed his chance to lock up those who think differently than him. In 1983, he served as Assistant District Attorney in Manhattan. He was seen by Witness Aid employee William Propp nodding out on heroin in the elevator on numerous occasions. He was a total disgrace to Robert Morgenthau's District Attorney Office. On September 16, 1983, Robert F. Kennedy Jr. was charged with heroin possession. He became ill while in the bathroom of an airplane flying to Rapid City, South Dakota. The authorities obtained a search warrant after he failed a drug test. The arrest came just two days after he announced that he was seeking treatment for being a junkie. As heroin is a felony in South Dakota, Junior's charge was punishable by up to two years in prison. In February 1994, he was sentenced to community service after attending rehab. A lot of other people, especially Blacks, would have done long bids. As if being brain damaged at birth, he continued to alter his brain tissue with opiates.

RFK JUNIOR FORMULATED CONFLICTING CRACKPOT THEORIES REGARDING THE INFAMOUS MARTHA MOXLEY MURDER

In 1975, 15-year-old Martha Moxley was found dead in her Greenwich, Connecticut backyard. No suspects would be charged for decades, until her neighbor Michael Skakel, also 15 at the time of the murder and the nephew of Robert F. Kennedy, was convicted of the crime — before eventually having his conviction overturned ostensive on the basis of incompetence of counsel, but in reality it was overturned because of a witness who had been bribed.

In 2002, a jury of twelve found Michael Skakel guilty of the 1975 murder of fifteen-year-old Martha Moxley. The evidence established that Martha was bludgeoned to death with a golf club belonging to defendant's mother; that the then fifteen-year-old defendant had been infatuated with Martha, whose attention was directed at defendant's older brother, Thomas; and that defendant made multiple incriminating statements, some outright admitting to the murder, to multiple people over the years between the crime and his prosecution. For his criminal trial, defendant, who had considerable financial resources, hired a private defense team, consisting of Attorney Michael Sherman and a number of his associates (hereinafter “the defense team”). The following evidence was later presented at the habeas trial as to the defense team’s efforts prior to and during defendant’s criminal trial: Specifically, two of the defendant’s brothers and one of his cousins told police that the defendant was with them at his cousins’ house, approximately twenty minutes away from the scene of the crime, from 9:30 to 11 [the time of the murder]. The defense team called all three to the stand at trial in support of this partial-alibi defense. The defense team also argued to the jury that the evidence suggested the victim most likely was killed in the time period covered by the partial alibi. In 2013, eleven years after the criminal trial, however, Denis Ossorio testified at the state habeas hearing that he was Dowdle’s “beau” in 1975 and that he could recall, almost forty years later, leaving the faroff room at some point and having a conversation with defendant and the others that evening. Notwithstanding that Ossorio’s account contradicted the account that defendant and all three other partial alibi witnesses provided to the police and the defense team, new counsel for the defendant argued to the habeas court that no reasonably competent defense attorney would have failed to investigate the possibility that Dowdle’s “beau” could have become a fourth partial alibi witness.

Denis was a very important witness because he was not related to Skakel and provided an alibi for him. Michael Skakel's cousin, and Denis girlfriend who he said he was with that night, Georgeann Dowdle, testified before the grand jury in the case "that she was at home with her young daughter and her 'beau' on the night of the murder and heard her brother and Skakel cousins talking, but, given the passage of so much time, she could not recall whether she actually saw them."

Denis Ossorio was a seventy-two year old retired psychologist at the time of the petitioner's habeas proceedings. Ossorio testified that, in 1975, he resided in Greenwich and operated an employment related program for women. Ossorio further testified that he was at the Terrien home on the evening of October 30, 1975, visiting Dowdle, with whom he had a personal relationship. According to Ossorio, the petitioner and two of his brothers were also there that evening, watching television with Terrien, and he joined them in the television room periodically when Dowdle was otherwise occupied with her daughter. Ossorio recalled leaving the Terrien residence at about midnight and was not sure whether the Michael Skakels had left before him. Ossorio further stated that he was living in Greenwich at the time of the petitioner's criminal trial and would have been available to testify, but no one from Sherman's office or the office of the state's attorney ever contacted him. Ossorio also explained that, although he was aware that the petitioner had been charged with the victim's murder, he did not pay close attention to the trial itself and was unaware that his recollection of the events of the evening of October 30, 1975, had any particular significance to the case.

When a person doesn't know about recent news, culture, or entertainment that's extremely well-known, you can ask: Have you been living under a rock? It means "How is it possible for you to not know about this?" Another way that people use "living under a rock" is: Unless you've been living under a rock, you've probably heard about...

Ossorio expects us to believe that he was living under a rock: having been with the defendant in a highly publicized Kennedy dynasty connected murder case on the night of the murder and having the ability to provide an alibi for that defendant didn't have significance in this case? This witness was bought and paid for by the Kennedy family. I am attempting to reach by telephonically.

Another reason the conviction was overturned on a technicality was that Defense Attorney Sherman failed to suppress taped conversations between Michael Skakel and Richard Hoffman, a freelance writer Skakel hired in the late 1990s to be the ghostwriter of a planned autobiography titled, "Dead Man Talking." In those tapes, which Hoffman testified were subject to a confidentiality agreement, Skakel admitted to a peeping-Tom incident on Moxley's property the night of her murder. Skakel had climbed a tree and peeped in Martha's window while masturbating. He expressed anxiety that he would be identified as a suspect. Skakel also stopped short of denying that he bludgeoned Moxley with a golf club on the recording, which prosecutor Jonathan Benedict played for jurors as part of a powerful multimedia presentation at the end of the 2002 trial that included a slideshow of graphic photos of the crime scene. The Connecticut Appellate court also believed Skakel didn't get a fair trial because his brother was never named as a suspect:

Shortly after the murder, Thomas Skakel told police and the victim's family that he had said goodbye to Martha at approximately 9:15 p.m. on October 30 and returned to his bedroom to do homework until 10:15 p.m., when he briefly watched television with Littleton, the family tutor. But years later, Thomas confessed to private investigators that he had lied. Thomas stated that instead of returning home at 9:30 p.m., he had actually engaged in a consensual sexual encounter with Martha in the Skakel back yard, not far from the Moxley driveway, from 9:30 until approximately 9:50 or 9:55 p.m. Thomas admitted that he had unbuckled and pushed down Martha's pants in the course of the encounter. Notably, Thomas himself directly repeated that confession to Sherman, days before respondent's trial, in the presence of Thomas's attorney Emmanuel Margolis and Sherman's associate Jason Throne. Thomas made clear that he would invoke the Fifth Amendment if called to testify. But Sherman made no effort to introduce Thomas's highly incriminating admissions through the testimony of either Throne or Margolis. Nor did Sherman marshal other available evidence implicating Thomas. That evidence established that (1) Thomas had been acting in a “strange” and “very aggressive” manner towards Martha in the weeks before the murder; (2) Martha had repeatedly rebuffed Thomas’s sexual advances; and (3) Thomas had a history of “mental and emotional instability” that manifested itself in “frequent and quite sudden” incidents of “severe physical violence, incontinence, and threats against [his] siblings.” (noting that Thomas had previously “put his fist through a door,” “beat the crap” out of a soccer opponent, and “stabbed his brother in the head with a fork”).

This story was an attempt to put reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors by making himself a suspect in the murder, having admitted to disrobing Moxley. Since he didn’t do it he felt he would never be convicted.

First Junior blamed tutor KEN LITTLETON for the murder. These are excerpts from an article Junior did for the Atlantic Monthly:

When the Greenwich police learned of Kenneth Littleton's rape arrest, they persuaded Nantucket prosecutors to offer to reduce Littleton's felony charge to a misdemeanor if he would submit to a sodium-amytal interview about the Moxley murder. Littleton refused, and pleaded guilty to the felony—a plea that ended his teaching and coaching career. In May of 1977 the Nantucket court gave him a suspended sentence and placed him on probation. In explaining his crime spree to the judge, Littleton said, "When I drink I flip out." Mary Baker later told the police that Littleton had a peculiar hatred of dogs, "specifically when they bark." She did not say when that hatred began.

J. M. MacDonald, who as a psychiatrist for the District Courts of Denver has had extensive experience with narcoanalysis, says that drug interrogation is of doubtful value in obtaining confessions to crimes. Criminal suspects under the influence of barbiturates may deliberately withhold information, persist in giving untruthful answers, or falsely confess to crimes they did not commit. The psychopathic personality, in particular, appears to resist successfully the influence of drugs. MacDonald tells of a criminal psychopath who, having agreed to narco-interrogation, received 1.5 grams of sodium amytal over a period of five hours. This man feigned amnesia and gave a false account of a murder. "He displayed little or no remorse as he (falsely) described the crime, including burial of the body. Indeed he was very self-possessed and he appeared almost to enjoy the examination. From time to time he would request that more amytal be injected." MacDonald concludes that a person who gives false information prior to receiving drugs is likely to give false information also under narcosis, that the drugs are of little value for revealing deceptions, and that they are more effective in releasing unconsciously repressed material than in evoking consciously suppressed information.

RFK Jr. claimed Littleton was a serial killer, burglar, rapist and the Moxley Murderer.

The [idea that Littleton was the perpetrator] is consistent with Solomon's speculation that after Sweeney asked Littleton to check on the fracas, Littleton's hatred of dogs prompted him to grab a golf club stored near the door. Outside he heard the rustling of Tom Skakel and Martha in the bushes. Inflamed and in an alcoholic stupor, he followed Martha as she walked toward her house. When she refused his advances, he struck her and dragged her under the evergreen boughs.

So it was the fault of the dogs for barking. The next part of this article is even more absurd:

In the summer of 1998 Connecticut's attorney general granted Littleton lifetime immunity and removed him from the suspect list in exchange for his testimony before a rarely invoked one-man grand jury called to indict Michael Skakel. The phone calls came in—not about Tom Skakel or Littleton but, as Leonard Levitt later reported, about Michael. The calls came from former students at the Elan School who were eager to point the finger at him. Following a drunken car accident at age seventeen, Michael had, at his father's behest, been forced into Elan, which practices a controversial behavior-modification program that relies on peer confrontation. It turned out to be a snake pit where Michael was regularly beaten during the two years he was a resident.

No such thing as lifetime immunity! One man grand jury? That would be one man grade juror!

Elan Reform School prides itself on not using drugs to deal with these evil kids and by its own admission was the parent's "last resort" in dealing with their demented children. Michael Skakel was sent there because his parents knew he murdered Martha Moxley and wanted to prevent him from committing another murder.

Over the years, Elan has become less of a "last resort" school for troubled teenagers. Our many years of experience using a therapeutic community to build life skills is supplemented by group, family and individual work. Elan School has a special education director on staff and we offer maximum support and development of IEPs in collaboration with our sending school districts.

BURTON “BURR” TINSLEY

Then RFK blamed Adolph Hasbrouck and Burton “burr” Tinsley for the Moxley murder. In 2016 in his book, Framed, Robert F. Kennedy Jr. claimed he knew who really murdered 15-year-old Martha Moxley in the savage attack that shocked New York City suburbia more than 40 years ago— and it wasn’t Littleton. Rather, troubled New York public school teens Adolph Hasbrouck and Burton “Burr” Tinsley are “guilty beyond a reasonable doubt” of the killing, Kennedy writes.

KENNEDY AND RICHARDSON: BOTH MENTALLY UNSTABLE DOPERS

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. exposed himself around the house, demanded a ménage à trois with wife Mary Richardson- and told her things would be easier if she killed herself after he went public about his affair with Cheryl Hines. At 25, an initial suicide attempt, a plastic bag over her head, was thwarted when she panicked as she began running out of air; a year later, in August 1986, there was another failed attempt when Richardson vomited up the 200 barbiturates that she had swallowed. Afterward, she continued binging and purging, accompanied by regular use of alcohol and drugs, prescription and otherwise, for three years, until 1989 when, through AA, she managed to stop everything until 2005. In 2012, after he and Mary Richardson had divorced and Kennedy went public with Hines, Richardson committed suicide by hanging herself in the couple's Mt. Kisco home. "She told me she was sorry for everything," RFK Jr. told police. "She said I was right about everything, and everything was her fault. She then told me she needed me to take care of her. But she doesn't want to help herself"

ROBERT KENNEDY JR'S CRACKPOT SECOND GUN THEORY OF RFK ASSASSINATION

Junior thinks there was a second gunman helping Sirhan Sirhan shoot RFK. In May 2018 Robert F. Kennedy Jr. visited the Richard J. Donovan Correctional Facility, a California state prison complex in the desert outside San Diego that holds nearly 4,000 inmates. Kennedy was there to visit Sirhan the Palestinian refugee convicted of killing his father 50 years ago. "I got to a place where I had to see Sirhan," Kennedy said. He would not discuss the specifics of their conversation. But when it was over, Kennedy had joined those who believe there was a second gunman, and that it was not Sirhan who killed his father. The only problem with the second gunman theory is that Robert Kennedy was killed in a crowded room at the Ambassador Hotel and if there was a second gunman someone would have noticed him or jumped him. Since there were no eyewitnesses it was decided to make a Cuban-American Security Guard into a scapegoat. This never made it to the Court system. Another problem was that Sirhan was a member of the Arab Information Center run by the father of American Domestic Islamic Terrorism, Mohmmad Mehdi.

RFK JUNIOR WATERS-DOWN CALIFORNIA'S VACCINATION BILL

Junior's attempt to destroy California's vaccination bill: If Gavan Newsome, the New Age Governor of California, actually listened to this brain damaged crackpot he would have put children's lives and well being at risk for no valid reason. The vaccination law is designed to stop the spread of disease and prevent the world returning to the time of the Black Plague. You get enough unvaccinated people you could have an epidemic or pandemic due to the ignorance the Internet and Junior has spread. This is from the California Vaccination Law:

Existing law prohibits the governing authority of a school or other institution from admitting for attendance any pupil who fails to obtain required immunizations within the time limits prescribed by the State Department of Public Health. Existing law exempts from those requirements a pupil whose parents have filed with the governing authority a written statement by a licensed physician to the effect that immunization is not considered safe for that child, indicating the specific nature and probable duration of their medical condition or circumstances, including, but not limited to, family medical history. This bill would instead require the State Department of Public Health, by July 1, 2020, to develop and make available for use by licensed physicians and surgeons a statewide standardized medical exemption request form, which, commencing January 1, 2021, would be the only medical exemption documentation that a governing authority may accept. The bill would require the State Public Health Officer or the public health officer's designee to approve or deny a medical exemption request, upon determining that the request provides sufficient medical evidence that the immunization is contraindicated or that a specific precaution regarding a particular immunization exists, based on guidelines of the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The bill would specify the information to be included in the medical exemption form.

This bill would require the department, by December 31, 2020, to create and maintain a database of approved medical exemption requests, and to make the database accessible to local health officers. The bill would require a copy of a medical exemption granted prior to the availability of the standardized form to be submitted to the department for inclusion in the database by December 31, 2021, 2020, in order for the medical exemption to remain valid after the statewide standardized form has been adopted. The bill would authorize the State Public Health Officer or a local public health officer to revoke a medical exemption if the State Public Health Officer or local public health officer determines that the medical exemption is fraudulent or inconsistent with applicable CDC guidelines. The bill would require the department, in consultation with local educational agencies and local public health officers, to develop a process for a parent or guardian to request a medical exemption and the department to approve or deny the request and communicate its decision to the school district and the parent or guardian, as specified. The bill would also make conforming changes to existing law.

If an outbreak of measles occurred in a certain area, the authorities would be able to correlate it with the location of the Junior Typhoid Mary's who are spreading the disease.

In the event that such person does not wish to select a health practitioner to administer the immunization, he or she shall be provided with a form which shall give notice that as a prerequisite to processing the application for admission to, or for continued attendance at, the school such person shall state a valid reason for withholding consent or consent shall be given for immunization to be administered by a health officer in the public employ, or by a school physician or nurse. The form shall provide for the execution of a consent by such person and it shall also state that such person need not execute such consent if subdivision eight [or nine] of this section [apply] APPLIES to such child. No principal, teacher, owner or person in charge of a school shall permit any child to be admitted to such school, or to attend such school, in excess of fourteen days, without the certificate provided for in subdivision five of this section or some other acceptable evidence of the child's immunization against poliomyelitis, mumps, measles, diphtheria, rubella, varicella, hepatitis B, pertussis, tetanus, and, where applicable, Haemophilus influenzae type b (Hib), meningococcal disease, and pneumococcal disease.

State Sen. Richard Pan accepted changes that both Newsom and the Medical Board of California wanted to see. Pan expanded a major provision of the bill that would have restricted doctors to guidelines under the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention when they administer medical exemptions. The guidelines now include more exemptions that are allowed by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices and the American Academy of Pediatrics. Parents are given additional power under the amendments, because they can appeal decisions made by public health officials who might revoke or deny medical exemptions.

So Junior and the Hollywood Maggot Jessica Beil were able to convince Gavin to water down the bill which ultimately will result in the spread of measles and other diseases. The bottom line here is “Do you want to put your child’s health and well being into the hands of a new age space case or a crackpot, brain-damaged fantasy ridden know it all ex-junkie?” It’s like the case of faith healer Benny Hinn who instead of praying to the L-rd to take away his heart attack, he ran to the hospital to be treated by modern scientific medicine.

Junior is part of Morgan and Morgan a personal injury law firm and does TV advertising for the firm offering to sue Bayer for the carcinogen called Roundup. Morgan and Morgan have 540 attorneys. Only 11 are African-Americans. They are a lily white ambulance chasing slip and fall law firm. To this day RFK Jr. maintains vaccinations cause autism:

In the 1950s, when autism was not yet a household word, the day's leading psychiatrists and psychologists propagated the "refrigerator-mother hypothesis." According to this theory, autism—rare at the time—was the result of emotionally distant mothering. As the condition now known as autism spectrum disorder (ASD) began attaining epidemic proportions (with about 1 in 36 children diagnosed with ASD as of 2016 versus perhaps 1 in 10,000 in the early 1980s), researchers eventually found the refrigerator-mom paradigm to be wanting and turned their attention to other theories—but still often remained focused on maternal risk factors.

One of the narratives to gain recent prominence is that autism begins in the womb. Although the womb hypothesis is grounded in the neurodevelopmental reality that what happens during pregnancy can have "significant consequences for brain and behavior throughout the remainder of the lifespan," its media proponents seem to be using it more as a smokescreen.

How does the smokescreen work? First, with the womb front and center, it becomes possible to downplay the fact that the preponderance of autism cases are regressive—that is to say, most often arising in children who were previously developing completely normally. The prenatal spotlight also makes it easier to deflect attention away from the fact that autism's explosion on the scene coincided with key trends such as the escalating overuse of childhood vaccines containing toxins like aluminum and glyphosate—while helpfully making it difficult to get overly specific about environmental exposures at all. As one government researcher has stated, “[B]y the time children are diagnosed [with autism] at age 3 or 4, it’s hard to go back and know what the moms were exposed to.”

DONALD TRUMP WAS GOING TO MAKE ROBERT KENNEDY JR. HEAD OF A COMMISSION LOOKING INTO THE VACCINE SAFETY

“Autism has become an epidemic. Twenty-five years ago, 35 years ago, you look at the statistics, not even close. It has gotten totally out of control,” Trump said. “I am totally in favor of vaccines. But I want smaller doses over a longer period of time. Same exact amount, but you take this little beautiful baby, and you pump—I mean, it looks just like it’s meant for a horse, not for a child, and we’ve had so many instances, people that work for me.” He added: “Just the other day, 2 years old, 2½ years old, a child, a beautiful child went to have the vaccine, and came back, and a week later got a tremendous fever, got very, very sick, now is autistic.”

RFK Jr. was asked by President Trump to lead a study on vaccine safety, and the two have met to talk about this issue. “[President Trump] said he had a lot of friends who have been affected, whose children had gotten autism from the vaccines and changed after getting the vaccines. He said he is not ready to dismiss [the vaccine-autism link]... The CDC says ‘there is nothing to this’ but he was skeptical of that,” RFK Jr. said.

Spacing out vaccines leaves young children exposed to diseases in between vaccinations at an age when they're particularly vulnerable. In other words you get a Measles vaccination then wait a year for a mumps vaccination you will leave a window open for a mumps infection.

CHAPTER TWO

MERCURY USED AS PRESERVATIVE IN VACCINES WAS DELETERIOUS BUT DIDN'T CAUSE AUTISM

Beginning circa 1998, a theory emerged that “thimerosal,” mercury- based preservative used in vaccines might be causing autism. Mercury is no longer used as a vaccine preservative. But its use was a shot in the arm for those seeking an answer to why their child was autistic and for greedy, evil medical professionals hoping to cash in on their desperation. Thimerosal [methyl mercury¹] was used in multi-dose bottles of vaccines and increased the mercury levels in infants and children in order to enhance big pharma’s bottom line. A move to single dose vials could have prevented cross-contamination but the vaccine manufactures were too cheap to do this. But individual dosing comes at a cost: more packaging, more expensive shipment and more storage is needed, and that can be really expensive. Big Pharma will naturally roll that cost onto the consumer – driving up the cost of the vaccines. Even though this can mean that a third world country already strapped for cash will not be able to afford the vaccine – and hence that children or adults won't get vaccinated and protected against these diseases, Americans come first. Even if it meant a small medical practice may have problems with storing the vaccines, it was well worth it.

Between 1999 and 2002, thimerosal was phased out of most of the vaccines commonly given to infants in the United States. However, thimerosal remains in influenza (flu) vaccines, which are commonly given to infants. The CDC reported:

Why was thimerosal removed from vaccines given to children? In 1999, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) was required by law to assess the amount of mercury in all the products the agency oversees, not just vaccines. The U.S. Public Health Service decided that as much mercury as possible should be removed from vaccines, and thimerosal was the only source of mercury in vaccines. The decision to remove it was a made as a precautionary measure to decrease overall exposure to mercury among young infants. This decision was possible because childhood vaccines could be reformulated to leave out thimerosal without threatening safety, effectiveness, and purity. Today, no childhood vaccine used in the U.S.—except some formulations of flu vaccine in multi-dose vials—use thimerosal as a preservative.²

For fetuses, infants, and children, the primary health effect of methyl mercury is impaired neurological development. Exposure to methyl mercury most commonly occurs when people eat kinds of fish and shellfish that have high levels of methyl mercury in their tissues. Methyl mercury exposure in the womb, which can result from a mother's exposure, can adversely affect a baby's growing brain and nervous system. Impacts on cognitive thinking, memory, attention, language, and fine motor and visual spatial skills have been seen in children exposed to methyl mercury in the womb.

Proponents of raising the mercury levels in order to make sure a vaccine was not contaminated, like CDC's Dr. Frank DeStefano, stated that after it is ingested, methyl mercury is metabolized and becomes ethyl mercury, which is harmless but is it? Abstract

Ethyl mercury (etHg) is derived from the metabolism of thimerosal which is the most widely used form of organic mercury. Because of its application as a vaccine preservative, almost every human and animal (domestic and farmed) that has been immunized with thimerosal-containing vaccines has been exposed to ethyl mercury. Although methyl mercury (meHg) is considered a hazardous substance that is to be avoided even at small levels when consumed in foods such as seafood and rice (in Asia), the World Health Organization considers small doses of thimerosal safe regardless of multiple/repetitive exposures to vaccines that are predominantly taken during pregnancy or infancy.

We have reviewed in vitro and in vivo studies that compare the toxicological parameters among ethyl mercury and other forms of mercury (predominantly methyl mercury) to assess their relative toxicities and potential to cause cumulative insults. In vitro studies comparing ethyl mercury with methyl mercury demonstrate equivalent measured outcomes for cardiovascular, neural and immune cells. However, under in vivo conditions, evidence indicates a distinct toxicokinetic profile between methyl mercury and ethyl mercury, favoring a shorter blood half-life, attendant compartment distribution and the elimination of etHg compared with methyl mercury.

Ethyl mercury's toxicity profile is different from that of methyl mercury, leading to different exposure and toxicity risks. Therefore, in real-life scenarios, a simultaneous exposure to both ethyl mercury and methyl mercury might result in enhanced neurotoxic effects in developing mammals. However, our knowledge on this subject is still incomplete, and studies are required to address the predictability of the additive or synergic toxicological effects of ethyl mercury and methyl mercury (or other neurotoxicants).

Metabolism of mercury by microorganisms in aquatic sediments creates methyl mercury, an organic form of mercury. How long before Methyl is metabolized to Ethyl within the body and what does it do when it is initially introduced into humans as Methyl? Does it metabolize within seconds? Thimerosal was banned for a reason: A study entitled Thimerosal-Containing Hepatitis B Vaccination and the Risk for Diagnosed Specific Delays in Development in the United States: A Case-Control Study in the Vaccine Safety Datalink reached this Conclusion:

Though routine childhood vaccination may be an important public health tool to reduce the morbidity and mortality associated with infectious diseases, the present study supports an association between increasing organic-mercury exposure from Thimerosal-containing childhood vaccines and the subsequent risk of specific delays in development among males and females.

DR. VAS APOSHIAN

At the Onminbus Autism Trial Dr. Vas Aposhian raised a number of points in support of his conclusion that thimerosal containing vaccines can damage infants' immune systems. He relied on the evidence outlined in his expert report, demonstrating that mercury in various forms can be toxic to humans. He pointed out that the amount of mercury received by infants from thimerosal-containing vaccines exceeds a "reference-dose" standard developed by the Environmental Protection Agency for methyl mercury. He described the theory that autism might be caused in some children because they suffer from a "mercury efflux disorder"-- i.e., an inability to excrete mercury as efficiently as most children do, so that a resulting build-up of mercury in the body might damage the function of the body's cells, including cells of the immune system. Dr. Aposhian also suggested that autistic children may be autistic because they are genetically "hyper-susceptible" to mercury, leaving them especially vulnerable to immune system damage when exposed to thimerosal. The only problem with this theory was that after the mercury was removed from childhood vaccines autism rates continued to soar.

This didn't prevent the desperate parents of autistic children to find another scapegoat: this time it was aluminum. These researchers doctored images to support the results of the study

A study that linked aluminum vaccine adjuvants³ to genetic changes "homologous with biomarkers of autism" in mice is to be retracted by the Journal of Inorganic Chemistry. The retraction comes after readers of the website PubPeer claimed to have found image alterations in the paper. The study authors Christopher Shaw and Lucija Tomljenovic of the University of British Columbia then reviewed the data and found evidence of western blot image alterations. They contacted the journal and asked for the retraction, Shaw according to Shaw.

Typhoid Lisa D gave one million dollars to the University of British Columbia to produce this phony-assed paper. ^

CHAPTER THREE

ANDREW WAKEFIELD RACIST MMR STUDY

British Gastroenterologist Dr. Andrew Wakefield was barred from practicing medicine in the UK due his sadistic tendencies but is none-the-less the sweetheart of mothers which autistic children. In 1998 Wakefield and colleagues published an article raising claiming that the measles-mumps-rubella (“MMR”) vaccine caused autism which was published in prestigious age old British medical journal, The Lancet. The study was sponsored by law firms hoping to collect big judgments from vaccine manufacturers and was totally bogus. The Lancet article states:

The objective is to seek evidence which will be acceptable in a court of law of the causative connection between the mumps, measles and rubella vaccine or the measles/rubella vaccine and certain conditions which have been reported with considerable frequency by families of children who are seeking compensation. It is hoped that using the testing protocol attached it will be possible to establish the causal link between the administration of the vaccines and the conditions outlined in this proposed protocol and costing proposal. The board commissioned the project under an “authority to do contract work,” naming Wakefield, issued on 22 August 1996. One paper was published on February 28, 1998, and the other was rejected by the journal.

BRIAN DEER'S INVESTIGATION

The investigation of Wakefield centered on Brian Deer's numerous findings, including that children with autism were subjected to unnecessary invasive medical procedures such as colonoscopies and lumbar punctures, and that Wakefield acted without the required ethical approval from an institutional review board. Wakefield chose less than a dozen subjects for his study many of whom already believed that their vaccinations had caused autism.

Q: What I am suggesting to you and what I now want to ask you is where you make it clear that the children had come to the Royal Free Hospital in the first place, at least in the majority of cases, in the letters that we have looked at, because their parents, or in some cases their doctor through their parents, thought that MMR might have caused the damage?

A: That is implicit to anyone reading this paper. When we talk in the discussion about a possibility of a referral, selection bias, in a self-referred group, the group is self-referred because of the symptoms manifest by the children, including the history of a possible exposure to a vaccine or an infection that has led to the problem, and then seeking help from a specific unit. That is explicitly what self-referral means. Inherent in that is, to the reader, those elements of the history of the patient that have caused them to come to that unit. To anyone reading this, we would have considered that to be self-evident. Self-referral on the basis of one or more of the symptoms of gastrointestinal problems, developmental regression and an association with environmental exposure...

Q: I asked you why you did not make it clear, as we have seen from the letters that we looked at yesterday, that, at least in the vast majority of cases, these children came in the first place because their parents thought that MMR had caused that condition. You immediately to go a line where you talk about self-referral, but that particular reference does not include the very point that I am asking about, and you say is implicit, namely the association with MMR. How does any reader, whether a scientist, doctor or otherwise, read that into what you say there?

A: The patients, children, are self-referred based on their symptoms and their history. That contains the three key elements of an environmental exposure, gastrointestinal problems and developmental regression. That self-referral encapsulates those three elements. That is, I would have thought, evident to any reader.” Google

The Lancet fully retracted the 1998 publication on the basis of the GMC's findings, noting that elements of the manuscript had been falsified.^[18] On 28 January 2010, a five-member statutory tribunal of the General Medical Council found three dozen charges proved, including four counts of dishonesty and 12 counts involving the abuse of developmentally delayed children.⁴ The panel ruled that Wakefield had "failed in his duties as a responsible consultant", acted both against the interests of his patients, and "dishonestly and irresponsibly" in his published research.

RACIST BOGUS STUDY

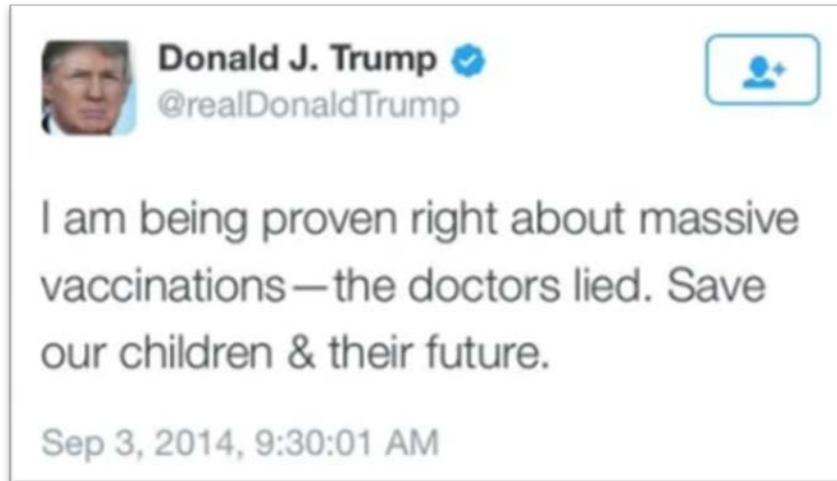

⁴ https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Andrew_Wakefield#cite_note-14

August 8, 2014 Wakefield claimed that key findings were left out of a CDC study that showed the same trend:

The results show a strong relationship between child age at the administration of the first MMR and autism incidence exclusively for African American boys which could indicate a role of the vaccine in the etiology of autism within this population group. This particular analysis was not completed in the original Destefano et al. [14] (CDC) study. Although the previous study considered MMR timing and African Americans in general, no statistically significant effect was observed. This is in contrast to our result for African Americans in general, because the CDC study limited the total African American cohort to include only those individuals who possessed a valid State of Georgia birth certificate which decreased the statistical power of their analysis. Although a statistically significant relationship between first MMR age and autism incidence was seen in the general (all races) population within the earlier Destefano et al. [14] study, the coauthors interpreted this result as an artifact of “healthcare seeking behavior” citing that autistic children would receive their vaccines earlier in order to enroll in State of Georgia early intervention programs. However, it is highly unlikely that this type of behavior would be seen exclusively in African American males and thus, alternative hypotheses must be explored, including the possibility that the MMR vaccine may be causally linked to autism in African American males. The present study provides new evidence of a statistically significant relationship between the timing of the first MMR vaccine and autism incidence in African American males.

VACCINE EUGENICS

What was diabolical was that the results were designed to discourage African-Americans from getting vaccinated so they would contract the disease and their numbers would be cut down.

WILLIAM THOMPSON

Things were looking good for Dr. Wakefield and the crackpot crew of anti-vaxxers when William Thompson who worked on the CDC study released a statement via his attorneys:

My name is William Thompson. I am a Senior Scientist with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, where I have worked since 1998. I regret that my coauthors and I omitted statistically significant information in our 2004 article published in the journal Pediatrics. The omitted data suggested that African American males who received the MMR vaccine before age 36 months were at increased risk for autism. Decisions were made regarding which findings to report after the data were collected, and I believe that the final study protocol was not followed.

In May 2016 Thompson retracted this and stated that the MMR vaccine is not linked to autism in African American males. Instead Dr. Thompson stated that socioeconomic factors alone in the African American community (African-Americans were more likely to have their vaccinations earlier in life in order to enter government sponsored programs) accounted for the original MMR-African American male “effect” (the effect that he was once on record as stating the CDC purposefully hid).

I want to be absolutely clear that I believe vaccines have saved and continue to save countless lives. I would never suggest that any parent avoid vaccinating children of any race. Vaccines prevent serious diseases, and the risks associated with their administration are vastly outweighed by their individual and societal benefits. Scientists and organizations across the world spent a great deal of time and money exposing the scientific fraud that formed the basis of the paper refuting the results of a minor paper in the Lancet and exposing the scientific fraud that formed the basis of the paper. Appallingly, parents across the world did not vaccinate their children out of fear of the risk of autism, thereby exposing their children to the risks of disease and the well-documented complications related thereto. Measles outbreaks in the UK in 2008 and 2009 as well as pockets of measles in the USA and Canada were attributed to the non-vaccination of children. The Wakefield fraud is likely to go down as one of the most serious frauds in medical history.

WAKEFIELD AND TRUMP

ALEX SPOURDALAKIS VIOLENT AUTISTIC MAN CHILD

There have been times when Wakefield's advice proved fatal: The final months of Alex Spourdalakis life included a desperate drive to New York to see a doctor who his parents hoped would confirm their long-held suspicion that many of the problems were caused by inflammatory bowel disease. Keep in mind: Alex couldn't talk. He had no way to communicate what was bothering him. But when they returned to Chicago, Dorothy and Agatha told friends they couldn't find a hospital that would treat Alex's stomach problems until his violent behavior stabilized. "This is what he's fought for and hung on for, for this to happen?" Dorothy said. In June 2013, River Grove police found Alex drugged and stabbed repeatedly in the family's second floor apartment. Dorothy and Agatha had unsuccessfully tried to take their own lives. A suicide note left by Dorothy reads in part: "Alex will not be neglected and abused by the medical community anymore... Alex will not be treated as less than human... Alex will not have to suffer anything, anymore." In a note that the mother wrote before trying to end her life, Spourdalakis accused the medical community of neglecting her son, keeping him restrained 'like an animal,' and treating him with psychiatric drugs that made his condition worse.

This was what Wakefield told her was happening. Alex's final weeks were captured on camera by Wakefield's anti-Vaxx crew, and turned into a film titled:

"Who Killed Alex Spourdalakis?" "We clearly didn't anticipate the end of this. This was part of a reality show in which we were trying to show how these children could be made better; but what we captured was in fact a prelude to an alleged murder," said Andy Wakefield, Autism Media Channel. "She just, she just couldn't take seeing her son in pain anymore and seeing no future for him, and there was no help for him," said Polly Tommey, Autism Media Channel. Andrew Wakefield had asked the 'autism community' to help find Alex a place to stay before he was put in 'long term psychiatric care.' He said Alex needed someone to provide a place where he could 'be on the necessary diet' and 'complete the treatment' for his autism. This autistic kid needed long term in nut house psychiatric care and Wakefield talked his folks out of it and they ended up killing the kid because he was violent and dangerous. Andrew Wakefield has become one of the most reviled doctors of his generation, blamed directly and indirectly, depending on the accuser, for irresponsibly starting a panic with tragic repercussions: vaccination rates so low that childhood diseases once all but eradicated here — whooping cough and measles, among them — have re-emerged, endangering young lives. Brian Hooker isn't any better.

BRIAN HOOKER'S AUTISTIC SON

There's no biologically plausible reason why there would be an effect observed in African-Americans but no other race and, more specifically than that, in African-American males, linking vaccinations and autism. However Brian Hooker still believes that there is. In 2014, Hooker's paper titled "Measles-mumps-rubella vaccination timing and autism among young African American boys: a reanalysis of CDC data" was retracted from the journal Translational Neurodegeneration.

African Americans tend to suffer disproportionate rates of disability and disease when compared to other racial and ethnic groups due to access to preventative and curative care. However, evidence demonstrates that although rates of diagnosis for autism occur at the same rates in all racial groups, diagnosis in African American children occurs later than in White children. As a result, African American children may require longer and more intensive intervention.

What [Hooker] did is found grist for a perfect conspiracy theory to demonize the CDC, play the race card in a truly despicable fashion, and cast fear, uncertainty, and doubt about the CDC vaccination program, knowing that most of the white anti-vaccine activists who support [him] hate the CDC so much that they won't notice that even Hooker's reanalysis doesn't support their belief that vaccines caused the autism in their children.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE BANKROLLERS

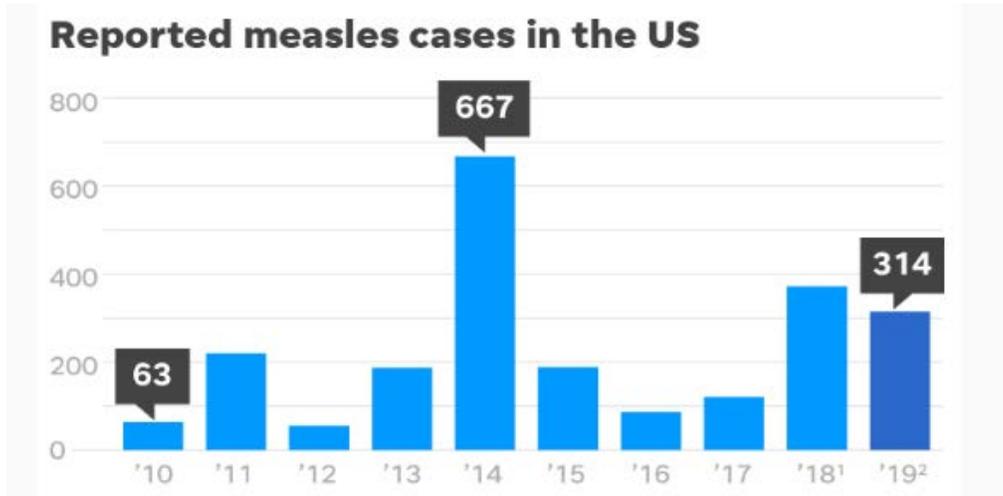

Two Jewish Doctors, Jonas Salk, MD, and Albert Sabin, MD, made what are perhaps the best known advances in vaccination —they developed the inactivated polio vaccine and live polio vaccine, respectively. Their discoveries have saved countless children worldwide from polio, a disease that often left youngsters dependent on wheelchairs or crutches for life.

LISA SELZ & LISA DWOSKIN

Now Lisa Selz & Lisa Dvoskin, who have no scientific backgrounds, are trying to reverse the advances made by Sabin & Salk. Thanks to them and their puppets and fronts, vaccine paranoia is one of the 10 biggest threats to global health, with a 30 percent increases in measles cases worldwide last year. In 2000, measles was considered to have been eliminated in the United States. But in 2018, the U.S. had its second-most cases since 2000. The current measles outbreak is caused by the increase in vaccination paranoia the direct result of elitists financing a campaign against vaccination and spreading sickness and possible death to those in lower socio-economic classes than themselves. Just as these devils were successful in business, they were able to increase the number of measles cases worldwide via their clever propaganda campaign.

All the members of this plutocratic grouping behind the propaganda BIG LIE campaign share one thing in common, they hate themselves and they hate Israel. Many are Jews of German descents who look down on Jews from Eastern Europe and on the Hasidic Jews who they considered an embarrassment to what little they practice of their religion.

Bernard and Lisa Selz are the one of the two major financial backers for the anti-Vax Movement. They also contribute to numerous charities including the anti-Israel Seeds of Peace but never give a nickel to Israeli institutions or Jewish charities. Is this just an oversight or is there an agenda behind this? So it is no surprise that these two pieces of self-hating dreck are the carriers of the measles epidemic who never show symptoms of the disease. Lisa is a modern day Typhoid Mary only her disease is her hatred of Eastern European Jews.

So it come as no surprise Handler's Handler turns out to be Typhoid Lisa who gave him the gelt for his Monsey, New York, Orthodox anti-vaccination event in the Spring of 2019, in the middle of a Selz induced measles outbreak. The Washington Post reported:

A wealthy Manhattan couple has emerged as significant financiers of the anti-vaccine movement, contributing more than $3 million in recent years to groups that stoke fears about immunizations online and at live events — including two forums this year at the epicenter of measles outbreaks in New York's ultra-Orthodox Jewish community.

Bernard Selz, 79, has more than 40 years experience in the securities industry and runs Selz Capital, a hedge fund that holds a portfolio valued at more than $500 million, according to recent filings from the Securities and Exchange Commission. Lisa Pagliaro Selz, 68, worked for Manufacturers Hanover Trust and Tiffany and Co. Since 1993, she has helped manage the Selz Foundation “with a focus on humanitarian, educational, geriatric, homeopathic, animal causes and the arts,” according to a news release issued by LaGuardia Community College Foundation, where she was a board member from 2011 to 2016. Bernard and Lisa Selz run a family foundation that has donated nearly $28 million to various causes over the last several years. Bernard Selz was a director of the Center for Jewish History until April 2015, according to the Center's 2015 tax filings. The Selz foundation bought his appointment. They have also donated large amounts to colleges and universities and causes varying from civil liberties, to ending the war on drugs, to the arts but nothing to anything Jewish other than the Center. In 2016, Manhattan's Frick Collection museum announced that Selz would become a director of the museum so you can see how he wormed his way into New York City's pro-vaccination social circles. The Selz's made rational business decisions and were economically successful yet they are stupid enough to believe the lies concocted by discredited researchers. Did they have a child that became autistic after a vaccination?

What could their motives be since they are too smart to believe this idiocy? All the members of this plutocratic grouping share one thing in common, they hate themselves and they hate Israel. Many are Jews of German descent who look down on Jews from Eastern Europe and on the Hasidic Jews who they considered an embarrassment to what little they practice of their religion. Subconsciously they want them to see them disappear. It is as if their German-Jewish heritage has transmitted Nazi genetic predispositions. German Jews were assimilationists and the founders of Reform Judaism. These Jews carrying German genes included the Jew in name only, New York Times owner Adolf Sulzberger, an enthusiastic supporter of the American Council for Judaism, founded in June 1942 to oppose Zionism, giving it prominent coverage in his newspaper. In its historical context, by opposing Israel they aided the Nazis in carrying out the mass murder of millions of other Jews, who they considered inferior. If it was up to them Holocaust survivors would have had no place to go. In a 1946 speech, Sulzberger claimed that Zionism was to blame for some of the Jewish deaths in the Holocaust, and that the refugee crisis during the war had been “a manageable, social and economic problem” until “the clamor for statehood introduced an insoluble political element” into the issue. “It is my judgment that thousands dead might now be alive” if “the Zionists” had put “less emphasis on statehood”. Thousands dead rather than millions? Adolf buried accounts of Nazi atrocities against Jews in the back pages of the Times. Sulzberger went out of his way to play down the special victimhood of Jews and withheld support for specific rescue programs for Eastern European Jews. Jewish intellectuals who at one time or another passed through the Council had German blood in them and included David Riesman, Hans Kohn, Erich Fromm, Hannah Arendt, Will Herberg, Morrie Ryskind and Murray Rothbard.

NAME AND ADDRESS

Informed Consent Action Network
10200 West US Highway 290, Suite 301
Austin, TX 78736

AMOUNT

1,050,000

According to tax filings for the Selz foundation in 2012 the couple gave $200,000 to a legal fund for British gastroenterologist Andrew Wakefield, who poisoned the medical well years ago by linking measles vaccines with autism in a fake study. And after Wakefield launched two nonprofits in 2014, the organization donated $1.6 million to the groups over several years. One, the AMC Foundation, was registered as a public charity to fund documentaries about public health issues. The other was a Texas nonprofit corporation. Wakefield used money from the Selzes to fund a film called Vaxxed, which detail his allegations of a government cover-up of vaccine dangers. It became an effective piece of propaganda, touring the country with its film producers who interviewed parents suspecting their children had been injured by vaccines at churches, libraries, and even chiropractors' offices. The Selz Foundation is listed first among 16 donors who financed the film's production. In 2016, the Selz's foundation gave $848,000 to two organizations run by Andrew Wakefield. The Selz foundation has donated over $1.6 million over several years to Wakefield's groups. The Selz's foundation has also given hundreds of thousands of dollars in recent years to various other anti-vaccine groups. They are among the first 16 donors listed as funders of the anti-vaccine film "Vaxxed," which presents several anecdotal stories of parents claiming that their children developed autism after receiving the MMR vaccine. A study published in 2019 that tracked 657,461 Danish children over 11 years found no correlation between who received the vaccine and who developed autism.

DEL BIGTREE

Typhoid Lisa serves as president of the Informed Consent Action Network, or ICAN, a prominent anti-vaccine group run by Del Bigtree, a medical journalist, not a doctor, and a snake oil salesman with Native American blood. The Selz's donations have helped ICAN become the bestfunded anti-vaccine group. Bigtree has spoken at two recent anti-vaccine symposiums organized for the ultra-Orthodox Jewish community, one in Monsey, New York, and one in Brooklyn on June 4. “They should be allowed to have the measles if they want the measles,” Bigtree said outside the Brooklyn meeting. “It’s crazy that there’s this level of intensity around a trivial childhood illness.”

What motivates these scum? Is there someone close to them who is autistic? One of their sons, Alexander G Selz, is about as far from autistic as you can get: “Currently a solar engineer (residential & commercial) with a masters in engineering and 1.5 years of battery experience from lab scale material and electrochemistry R&D to designing/building the fastest all electric motorcycle in the EU. Sometimes I write machine learning algorithms to trade crypto currency).” But according to the Washington Post (“The Selzes’ sons — both young adults — declined to comment.”) the Selz’ have another son who can’t find hide nor hare of? Is this the one with autism? His name is allegedly Andre Selz however the only Andre Selz I can find is a tattoo artist in Montana. These are the relatives of Bernard Selz.

Jaime Pagliaro has been appointed the first Chairman of the Board of Directors of Music For Autism (M4A). Pagliaro will lead the executive committee that will oversee M4A programming, fundraising and promotions. Pagliaro has worked with autism for more than a decade. He was the founding Executive Director of the New York Center for Autism Charter School, which was the first charter school in New York City to exclusively serve individuals with autism. The school continues to receive national recognition as a model public school-based solution for children with autism spectrum disorders. More recently, Pagliaro began work as Executive Vice President of Business Development for Rethink Autism, a groundbreaking, market-based initiative that leverages the internet to deliver high quality educational resources to parents of individuals with autism. “I am looking forward to working closely to advance the mission of M4A,” said Pagliaro, who noted that he is excited about his new role with M4A, as well as the organization’s great opportunity for growth. “M4A proudly welcomes Jamie as chair of our Board and will benefit greatly from his talents and enthusiasm. I am delighted to be able to work closely with Jamie in this new role,” said M4A Executive Director Robert Accordino.

TYPHOID LISA DWOSKIN

LISA CLAIR DWOSKIN

This is a sample of ONE of Typhoid Lisa’s front groups, Focus for Health:

In 2019 the World Health Organization (WHO) named “vaccine hesitancy” one of the greatest threats to public health. The United Nations has suggested those who are being public about their questioning of the safety of vaccines are more dangerous than the disease. The new party line for the media, the WHO, and UNICEF is that vaccines are “100% safe and effective” and “perfectly safe.” People are injured by vaccines as acknowledged by the federal government through the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS) and the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (NVCIP). Unfortunately, pharmaceutical companies have too much influence — over politicians, academic institutions, and the media. There is no longer any middle ground or room for discussion. This means there is no ability to protect a vulnerable person from unnecessary harm.

I was at the French Open 4-5 years ago and met a man who had the flu shot and developed Guillain-Barré Syndrome (GBS). He later had to stop tennis and retired at 63. A 22-year-old baseball player came to the office with his arm in a sling after losing the use of his arm from GBS following the flu shot. Somehow the United Nations and the public must realize that people who question safety issues aren’t anti-vaccine. It just makes no sense to carelessly destroy the lives of vulnerable people, when further research, improvements, and pharma accountability could potentially prevent these injuries and occurrences.

Since 2011, Geier's medical license has been suspended or revoked in every state in which he was licensed over concerns about his autism treatments and his misrepresentation of his credentials to the Maryland Board of Health, where he falsely claimed to be a board-certified geneticist and epidemiologist.^[4] Mark and his son, David Geier, are frequently cited by proponents of the now-discredited claim that vaccines cause autism. Wiki:

The Geiers have developed a protocol for treating autism that uses the drug Lupron, which acts as chemical castration. Mark Geier has called Lupron "the miracle drug" and the Geiers have marketed the protocol across the U.S. The Geiers filed 3 U.S. patent applications on the use of Lupron in combination with chelation therapy as treatment protocol for autism based on the hypothesis that "testosterone mercury" along with low levels of glutathione blocks the conversion of DHEA to DHEA-Sulfate and therefore raises androgens which in turn further lower glutathione levels, ultimately providing a connection between autism, mercury exposure, hyperandrogenicity specifically precocious puberty.^{[15][16][17]}

Lupron and drugs in its class were a solution to a rare but troubling problem: Toddler, preschool, and kindergarten-age girls were developing breasts and unexpected body hair. The drug works in the brain to shut down estrogen flow, essentially halting the body's progress toward puberty. Once the injections cease, the process of puberty resumes. Experts estimate that boys represent about 10 percent of the kids taking Lupron, many because of tumors or other conditions triggering early puberty. But why chemically castrate autistic children? Why the Nazi eugenics? So they can't reproduce and bring more unmanageable kids into the world? This drug is for sex offenders:

DR. RENEE SORRENTINO

In 2000, doctors started using a drug designed to treat prostate cancer to lower rapists, sexual deviates sexual urges. The drug Lupron tricks the hormone in the brain that tells the pituitary gland to produce testosterone. Dr. Renee Sorrentino is one of a handful of psychiatrists offering Lupron to patients in Massachusetts. Sorrentino says that about 20 percent of her current Lupron patients are there voluntarily, often desperate to curb their troubling sexual thoughts or actions. The rest were there because of a court order mandating chemical castration. Dr. Sorrentino is the medical director at the Institute for Sexual Wellness and Assistant Professor in Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Sorrentino is a Board Certified Forensic Psychiatrist with expertise in the evaluation and treatment of individuals with paraphilias. Dozens of paraphilias have been described, but most are uncommon or rare. The most common are Pedophilia Voyeurism Transvestic disorder Exhibitionism Others include sexual masochism disorder and sexual sadism disorder. Some paraphilias (such as pedophilia) are illegal and may result in being imprisoned and being labeled and registered as a sex offender for life. Some of these offenders also have significant personality disorders (eg, antisocial, narcissistic), which make treatment difficult. Parents often pay large sums of money to have their autistic boy chemically castrated as if he were being subconsciously punished for his condition. Most of the quack treatments for autism involve torture.

Richard Deth is a molecular neuroscientist and Professor of Pharmacology at Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. From 1976 to 2014 he held a similar position at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts. He currently serves as Director of the Center for Brain Research and Integrated Nutrition (B.R.A.I.N. Center) at Nova Southeastern University.

For the past 20 years Dr. Deth's research interests have been focused on the regulation of metabolic pathways that influence the function and survival of neurons in the brain, and their contribution to brain disorders across the lifespan. This includes pathways providing antioxidant resources to offset the high level of oxidation in the brain, as well as pathways supporting methylation, the process by which single carbon atoms are added to molecules such as DNA. DNA methylation controls gene expression via epigenetic regulation, which is especially active during early brain development. Dr. Deth's work has demonstrated that neurodevelopmental toxins, such as lead, mercury, aluminum and arsenic, exert potent effects on antioxidant status and methylation, showing that these same pathways are abnormal in autism and schizophrenia brain, in association with abnormally low levels of vitamin B12.

In 2014, Dr. Deth's laboratory was first to demonstrate that opioid peptides, released during digestion of gluten and casein, act to restrict transport and absorption of the sulfur amino acid cysteine. These peptides decrease synthesis of the essential antioxidant glutathione (GSH), whose levels are lower in autism, and they also affect DNA methylation, with epigenetic consequences. Together, work from the Deth lab establishes a connection between environmental toxins and autism.

CHAPTER FIVE

NETUREI KARTA

These reformed liberal Jewish elite mentioned in the last chapter have nothing in common with Neturei Karta yet they finance them. This is the handiwork of some of the people these Jews bankroll:

This symbol has Crypto-Nazi overtones: There is no numerical comparison to those who died in the Holocaust to those who have had idiosyncratic reactions to vaccines. So there is an element of Holocaust denial here.

Neturei Karta Rabbi Willaim Handler AKA Hillel Handler encourages this invalid Holocaust comparison because he, like the other NK cult members, are Holocaust revisionists. Neturei Karta is a Messianic cult and has a lot in common with the Messiah focused religion of Christianity which these cultists despise. Neturei Karta members dress in gold and jeweled robes, fur hats and expensive accoutrements. In fact their dress has zero to do with Judaism and is in fact copying the styles of 17th century Polish nobility. They are as far away in time from Bernard and Lisa Selz as you can get yet these two Jews find them useful in their campaign to end vaccinations. What could motivate these oligarchs to fund this sick movement? There has got to be some connection to autism.

SPECIAL SURPRISE SPEAKERS

The Jewish Defense Organization held huge demonstration against NK in Monsey New York where they have their headquarters.

NECHEMYA WEBERMAN

My cousin, Neturei Karta cult member Nechemya Weberman, is a convicted child rapist sentenced to life in prison. My great grandfather, Ben Zion Weberman, arranged for Rabbi Joel Teitelbaum, then the Neturei Karta head rabbi, to immigrate to Williamsburg, Brooklyn from Israel. Neturei Karta is one of 2 groups of Jews that are opposed to the state of Israel on religious grounds: It has 5,000 members worldwide. This cult attracts many mentally ill Jews. My cousin Mordechai Weberman, NK spokesman, was involved in a custody fight that went up to the United States Supreme Court and affected him mentally.

Eventually Rabbi Joel left Neturei Karta and became the Satmar Rebbe: 100,000 members worldwide. There is a split in Satmar so only about half are against the Jewish state on religious grounds. There are estimated to be 16 million Jews in the world. This 55,000 are a vanishingly small proportion of Jews. Orthodox Jews number 3 million so even among them the percentage of anti Israel Jews is very small but Neturei Karta members are publicity hounds so their exposure is disproportionate to their numbers. They are not only opposed to the existence of Israel but they believe that destroying it will hasten the coming of the Messiah because it is those dirty Israelis that are standing in the way of peace and paradise on earth. Neturei Karta work with Nazis, Fascists, Hamas, Iranians and other enemies of Israel often serving an intelligence function. They base their beliefs on this passage from Isaiah:

Isaiah 11:1-12

A royal scepter will emerge from the stock of Jesse, and a sapling will sprout from his roots. [Real translation “A shoot shall come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots.”] The spirit of G-d will rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and power, the spirit of knowledge and fear of G-d... And it shall come to pass on that day, that the L-rd will once again acquire the rest of His people...and He will gather the dispersed of Israel, and the scattered of Judah He will gather from the four corners of the earth.

This should give you an idea of how crazy these Neturei Karta anti-Vaxxers are. They changed the first three words of this verse from “shoot” or “green shoot” or “rod” “a straight slender stick growing on or cut from a tree or bush” to “royal scepter” to make it more certain this passage refers to the coming of the Messiah.

The NK attended the International Conference entitled “Review of the Holocaust” in Teheran December 12, 2006. NK Statement follows:

The figure of six million is regularly quoted. One may wish to dispute this actual figure, but the crime was just as dreadful whether the millions (and there were millions) of victims numbered six million, five million or four million. The method of murder is also irrelevant, whether it was by gas chamber (and there were eye witnesses to this), firing squads or whatever.

What’s a couple of million Jews between the Iranian Hitler Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and Neturei Karta? NK are clearly Holocaust revisionists and Jews who hate Israelis more than they do Iranian Nazis.

So in most cases the ultra-Orthodox refusal to be vaccinated is connected to a traditional irrational hatred of Zionism. Following the establishment of the State of Israel, many refused to cooperate with its institutions, including the National Insurance Institute, the Histadrut's health maintenance organization and well-baby clinics. Vaccinations were seen as government policy and boycotted. In any case, the ultra-Orthodox public largely believes that everything is in G-d's hands. Even though one must make the effort and go to the doctor, measles was not seen as a disease people die from. Pockets of resistance to vaccination remain in Neturei Karta and Hasidic courts such as the Dushinsky sect. Prior to Israel’s creation, Rav Dushinsky, a Jewish State hater from the start, appealed, in the name of 60,000 Jewish Orthodox residents to the United Nations by cable that Jerusalem should not be included in the Jewish state and should be given international status. What a sick bastard.

CDC officials have traced a handful of October 2018 cases in Rockland County to unvaccinated travelers arriving to the United States from Israel. The contagion there, according to the World Health Organization was likely exacerbated by travelers returning from a pilgrimage to Uman, Ukraine, where some Jews pay respects to the grave of an important rabbi, Nachman of Breslov, on the holiday of Rosh Hashanah. Ukraine is currently experiencing an unprecedented measles outbreak, with 54,000 cases reported in 2018, according to Science magazine.

The Neturei Karta (NK) is the main force behind the anti-Vaxxers in the Orthodox Jewish Community using front groups to cover their discredited identity. Their leader, Rabbi Hillel Handler, is a crackpot. His real name is William Handler. His Bris Milah Anti-Defamation League is spreading herpes to babies. He defends Orthodox child rapists and is probably one himself:

I want to warn our Orthodox Jewish community of a new danger: the existence of a clique of pseudo-experts who are working among us in the field of “Criminal Molestation.” These “experts”—self-styled “helping professionals”—are actively seeking-out people whom they believe to be “molesters,” with the goal of turning them over to the office of Brooklyn District Attorney Charles Hynes. This is an enterprise fraught with the most serious dangers for our community. Anyone can make an accusation of “molestation.” There are usually no witnesses. So how can anyone determine whether the accusers are telling the truth or making the whole thing up? Well, say the “experts,” we should assume that the accusation is true, because it’s highly improbable that anyone would make up such a grotesque story; and, in the unlikely event that someone did make up such a story, the “experts” in the district attorney’s office know how to question the accusers to make sure they aren’t lying. Now, since the whole enterprise revolves around the ehrlichkeit (honesty) of the accusers and the honesty and skill of the district attorney, it is reasonable to ask a couple of poignant questions:

1. Is the accuser really telling the truth, or is he a skilled liar, who seeks to settle a score with the accused, gain custody of children in a divorce case, or just plain do harm to someone for any reason at all?

2. Do prosecutors always do their job properly; do they always seek justice?

Those of you who may have had the occasion to get entangled with NY City's ACS/DCP (Administration for Children's Services / Division of Child Protection) will understand what I mean when I speak of the dangers of getting entangled in a Kafkaesque government bureaucracy. Perhaps your baby spilled some hot tea on his hand and got a serious burn. You call Hatzolah, and the ambulance speeds your screaming child to the hospital emergency room. (NOTE: this is a true story, it happened exactly as I'm describing it) Before your child is even treated for his condition, and while he is still screaming in pain, the emergency room staff will insist that you submit to an interview with a social worker, who will try to determine whether you were guilty of child neglect. This procedure is mandated by City law. As "mandated reporters," emergency room staff are required to report any suspicious indications of child neglect or abuse (as are other government licensed professionals, like psychiatrists and doctors).

I sense that the evil Rabbi Handler spilled hot tea on his son's hand to punish him. NK attracts mentally ill religious Jews. So it is no surprise where he stands on vaccination:

At the instigation of the Federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the NYC Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH), a number of prominent Jewish pediatricians have stepped forward to warn the Jewish community that they must immediately subject their children to the measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) 3-in-1 combination vaccine. The reason given is that there have been a number of measles cases in the Jewish community, and, therefore, parents must immediately protect their children. I propose to give an alternative view, based on five years of research into the vaccine industry and the practices of the DOHMH and the CDC. With all due respect to the fine pediatricians in our community who do their best to care for our young children, I strongly differ with their statement that "there is no credible evidence that the MMR vaccination causes mental or physical damage to children.” I have personally advised all members of my family to postpone all vaccinations until at least two years of age, and then to selectively give single shots only, not combinations of 3-in-1, 4-in-1, or 5-in-1. That means no MMR and no DPT. As a public service to the Jewish community, I would like to present the results of my investigations, in an attempt to introduce some measure of balance into the frenzied push for unlimited vaccinations to every child, regardless of their health condition.

Handler is not a doctor but is giving “Rabbinical” advice based on ignorance rather than empirical fact. He is a danger to the Jewish community. Another disease he wishes to spread is Herpes. Hundreds of infants have contracted the herpes virus after undergoing an ultra-Orthodox Jewish type of circumcision, which has been linked to the spread of the potentially deadly virus to newborn boys, according to the New York City Health Department.

In the ritual, known as metzitzah b'peh, after removing the foreskin of the penis the person performing the procedure places his mouth briefly over the wound, sucking a small amount of blood out, which is discarded. Antibacterial ointment is applied and the wound is bandaged. The health department says the procedure is dangerous because the contact with the mouth could transmit diseases such as herpes. Handler claims the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene is anti-Semitic and is framing the mohels (those who perform circumcision and place the child’s penis in their mouth) for spreading herpes.

As a member of the Bris Milah Anti-Defamation League, I have found it necessary to research the operations NYC Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH) and the Federal government’s Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), in connection with their accusations that traditional Bris Milah has caused injury, and even death, to Jewish children. Because most people assume that the CDC is a completely professional organization which is beyond politics, their attacks on Bris Milah have, unfortunately, struck fear and uncertainty among many of our fine Jewish mothers. In Washington, D.C., there is a joke that the government follows the “Golden Rule”—“He who has the gold, makes the rules.” Thousands of well-heeled lobbyists spend fortunes to influence and even write the legislation that comes out of Washington. The pharmaceutical industry, which manufactures all the vaccines, is one of the most well-heeled players in Washington. They can pretty much get anything they want from the Congress. During the 1980’s, the vaccine industry succeeded in passing a law that made it impossible for vaccine-injured children to sue the vaccine manufacturers. Instead, the Government set up a “Vaccine Court” to hear cases and pay compensation from Federal Government taxpayer money. Billions of dollars have been paid out for serious vaccine injuries, ranging from paralysis to mental retardation and, yes—Autism Spectrum Disorder. The information is available on a special database maintained by the CDC, the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS). Reb Avrohom “Romi” Cohn, an experienced Mohel who has performed over 35,000 Bris Milahs without even a single problem, told me that he just heard of a mother in Queens who was so terrorized by the NYC Department of Health’s fear-mongering campaign that she locked the door to her room and refused to allow her child to be taken to his Bris Milah, saying “I don’t want my baby to be killed.” The current Director of the CDC is none other than Thomas Frieden, the very same person who started the inquisition against Bris Milah when he was the Commissioner of Department of Health and Mental Hygiene under Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg. Susan Blank, the NYC Assistant Health Commissioner, who conducted the Bris Milah inquisition against Rabbis and parents, also works for the CDC and was Chairwoman of the 2012 AAP Task force on Circumcision. So, here you have a person, Susan Blank, who single-handedly controls circumcision policy at the CDC, the NYC Department of Health, and the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP). Imagine, a single woman has the power to create a blood libel against hundreds of Mohels in our community, despite the fact that *they have a safety record that is universally—if grudgingly—acknowledged to be superior to the safety record of any surgeon practicing in New York City’s hospitals.*⁷

The New York Times omitted the fact that the Monsey rally was an NK event.

Organized by a Monsey-based Jewish group, the event also showed how the movement was gaining ground: Rabbi Handler, a 77-year-old from Brooklyn who said he was a Holocaust survivor, set the tone for the night, claiming that Jews were being persecuted as disease carriers and were being attacked on the street in New York City for sneezing. (The Anti-Defamation League has strongly objected to the appropriation of Holocaust symbols by vaccine critics.) Mr. de Blasio has issued a public health emergency for four ZIP codes in Brooklyn where ultra-Orthodox Jews live. That decision appeared to have earned him the ire of Rabbi Handler, who described Mr. de Blasio as a “sneaky fellow” and a closet German — “Wilhelm, his real name, was named after Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.” (In fact, none of this is true. Mr. de Blasio was born Warren Wilhelm Jr., and later decided to take his mother's last name as his own after becoming alienated from his father.)

On April 9, 2019, acting through Commissioner Oxiris Barbot, The New York City government declared a state of emergency and issued emergency Orders that mandate “any person who lives, works or resides within the Williamsburg self-imposed Ghetto zip codes and who has not received the MMR vaccine within forty eight (48) hours of the order shall be vaccinated against measles unless the person can demonstrate immunity to the measles. “The emergency Orders provide as follows: Failure to comply with this Order is a violation of §3.05 of the New York City Health Code, and a misdemeanor for which you may be subject to civil and/or criminal fines, forfeitures and penalties, including imprisonment.” DeBlasio is not about to lock up a bunch of Satmar and NK basket cases but if he did they would have 10 for a minion.

RFK Junior argued: “The emergency Orders are arbitrary and capricious in prescribing mandatory vaccination because administration of the MMR vaccine carries the risk of harm to both children and adults. Parents of children receiving the MMR, and adults, together with their individual healthcare practitioners, are in the best position to assess risk. The emergency Orders are arbitrary and capricious in prescribing mandatory vaccination, thus violating the fundamental principle of informed consent to any medical intervention that carries a documented risk of harm, as does the MMR vaccine.”

William Handler is not a doctor non-the-less he said Measles is a benign and even beneficial illness, even though in New York City, 34 patients have been hospitalized and nine have ended up the intensive care unit. Handler even claimed at one point—without scientific backup—that contracting measles, mumps, and chicken pox lowers the lifetime risk of cancer, heart disease, and stroke. Later Rabbi Handler softened his anti-vaccine remarks. “I don’t mind if someone takes a vaccine. It’s not my business,” he said. “What am I, a fascist? Am I going to bring down the law?” Handler is a fascist and his cult works with non-Jewish fascists and Nazis in an attempt to destroy the “Zionist entity.”

Greg Mitchell, a Washington-based lobbyist who represents the Church of Scientology, attended the Monsey meeting and addressed the crowd, offering to be their “voice in the public-policy game.” Scientology’s partner in working to rid the world of vaccines is the notoriously anti-vaxxer group the Nation of Islam. Apparently, Scientology and the Nation of Islam like polio, smallpox, measles, and other deadly diseases that were largely eradicated by large-scale vaccinations programs. Dangerous pseudoscientific idiocy is certainly one thing that Scientology and the Nation of Islam have in common. Robert F. Kennedy Jr. the head Anti-Vaxxer Witch Doctor has worked with Scientology and the Nation of Islam on promoting disease.

Junior exists in this pseudo scientific nether world of Farrakhan, who believes the United States created Ebola but fails to object to a racist program to convince people bleach is the answer to all their problems.

Miracle Mineral Supplement, also known as the MMS Protocol, that contains the cleaning product bleach. Multiple sellers of this product have been sentenced to prison for falsely marketing this toxic chemical as a miracle cure. It is often introduced through a bleach enema. In May 2019, The Guardian reported that American pastor Robert Baldwin had "trained" around 1,200 clerics in Uganda to distribute MMS as a "miracle cure." Each cleric is estimated to administer MMS to around 50 churchgoers. Baldwin, aged 52 from New Jersey, has been importing in bulk sodium chlorite and citric acid, which are the components of MMS. Baldwin operates under 'Global Healing', the ministry he founded, which uses "the power of Almighty God ... to greatly reduce the loss of life." Baldwin offers smart phones to clerics as an incentive to spread the "miracle cure." The Guardian contacted Baldwin, who said: "We use natural healing therapies to help people – that's something Christians do." Baldwin hung up after The Guardian asked about the dosage of bleach being administered in Africa. When Jim Hubble, Baldwin's boss and the man behind the bleach-fueled attempted at genocide in Africa, was interviewed by 48 Hours, he accused them of being agents of Goldman-Sachs, another way of saying dirty Jews.

THE SOMALI FOLLY

From 2004 to 2010, MMR vaccine coverage among Somali children in Minnesota dropped from 91% to 54%. More recently, coverage rates have begun to improve, and the majority of new Somali arrivals support MMR vaccination. In early 2017, Minnesota health officials reported an outbreak of measles in the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area. As of August 2017, Minnesota had recorded 79 confirmed measles cases. Of those, 64 were in Somali Minnesotans, and most (n=74) were in unvaccinated or undervaccinated individuals.

In the early 2000's, the large Somali immigrant population had high vaccination rates. But in 2008, fear that their children were suffering from higher rates of autism swept through the community. Though research later concluded that autism rates were not unusually high in the community, anti-vaccination activists pounced on the panic. The activists held community meetings and invited Wakefield to visit with scared families. Vaccination rates dropped from 92 percent in 2004 to 42 percent in 2014.

CHAPTER SIX

JEFF BRADSTREET

CHRISTIAN ANTI-VACCINE CRUSADE

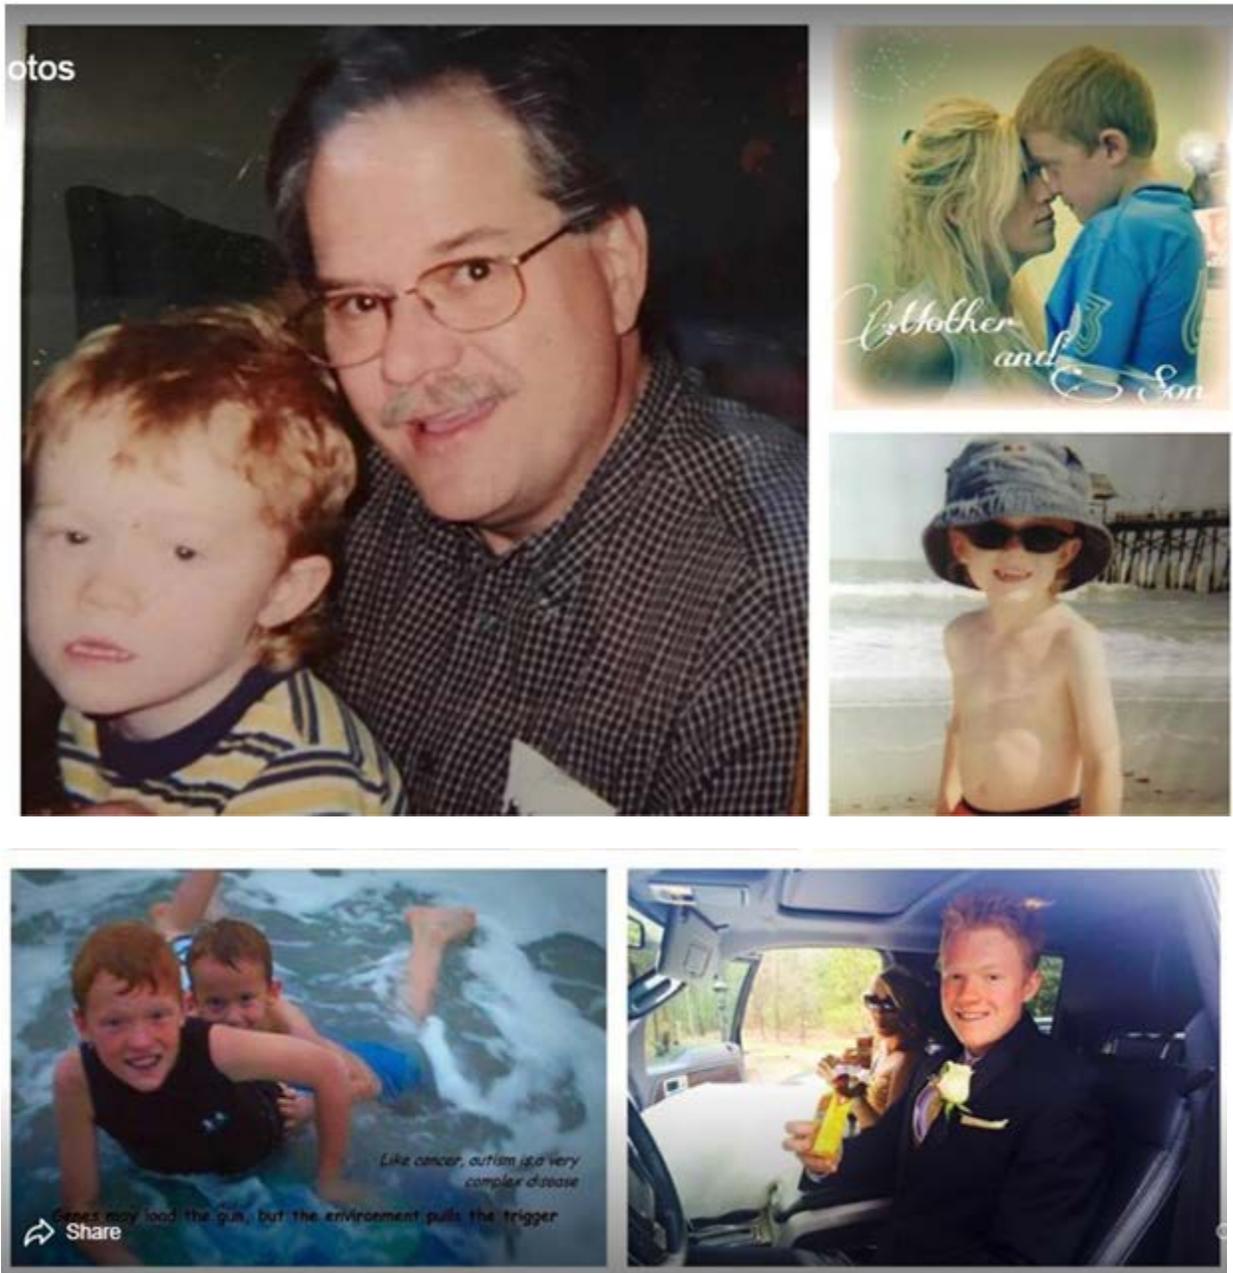

BRADSTREET AND JUNIOR

The MERCURY = AUTISM theory never panned out. But this didn't stop Jeff Bradstreet a military doctor who one day felt he had been called upon by the Lord to cure the sick. In-other-words he had an auditory hallucination. Rev. Jeff mixed Christianity and Medicine and became convinced that a recent vaccination caused his son to become autistic. During a sleazy Investigation / Discovery movie we never get to see his autistic son interviewed. Bradstreet is always saying "If my son was NOT autistic I wouldn't be here now" and we know that every word that comes out of his mouth is a lie. He claimed to have cured his son of autism. Perhaps the boy grew out of it.

Like other charlatans Bradstreet tortured autistic children with quack treatments in order to exorcise these evil spirits in a Christian fashion. Despite the fact that in retrospect there was no connection between autism and mercury Dr.

Bradstreet treated autistic child Colten Snyder (one of the test cases in the autism omnibus trial) with chelation therapy.

Chelation therapy uses special drugs that bind to metals in your blood. You get the chelating medicine through an intravenous (IV) tube in your arm. It's also available in pill form. Once the drug has attached to the metal, your body removes them both through your pee. He did this on the premise of removing mercury from his body, in spite of the fact that Colton's hair, blood, and urine tests had failed to show he exhibited abnormal levels of mercury.⁸ In August 2005, a boy aged 5 years with autism died while receiving IV chelation therapy with Na₂EDTA (a tannin rich extract of Castania Sativa, thyme and oregano oil) in a physician's office. During the chelation procedure, the mother noted that the child was limp. The physician initiated resuscitation, and an emergency services team transported the child to the hospital. At the emergency department (ED), further resuscitation. The child did not regain consciousness. The coroner examination indicated cause of death as diffuse, acute cerebral hypoxic-ischemic injury, secondary to diffuse subendocardial necrosis. The myocardial necrosis resulted from hypocalcemia associated with administration of Na₂EDTA. The case was under investigation by the Pennsylvania State Board of Medicine. Over an eight-year period, beginning in April 2000, Colten visited Bradstreet's office 160 times. This was pure quack medicine and could not cure autism. Bradstreet knew it. In an interview with the Chicago Tribune, Bradstreet defended the use of intravenous immunoglobulin (IVIG) as an autism treatment, saying, "Every kid with autism should have a trial of IVIG if money was not an option and IVIG was abundant." Serious side effects of immunoglobulin infusions include chest discomfort or pain, myocardial infarction, tachycardia hyponatremia, hemolysis, hemolytic anemia, thrombosis, hepatitis, anaphylaxis, backache, aseptic meningitis, acute renal failure, hypokalemic nephropathy, pulmonary embolism, and transfusion related lung injury.⁹ There is also a small chance that even given the precautions taken in preparing immunoglobulin preparations, an immunoglobulin infusion may pass a virus to its recipient. IVIG was never proven to cure autism and exposed autistic kids to even more pain than they were in. Bradstreet also published research regarding the use of hyperbaric oxygen therapy for autism, some of which concluded it was ineffective, when it is being used today to ameliorate the symptoms of autism. He also published a paper arguing that autistic children have an increased vulnerability to oxidative stress. Further treatments Bradstreet used on autistic children included the controversial protein GcMAF, with which he claimed to have treated 600 children.¹⁰ In an article for an anti-vaccine magazine, Bradstreet endorsed stem cell therapy as an autism treatment thought smoking cannabis might help.

Bradstreet was found dead from a gunshot wound to the chest in the Broad River, Rutherford County, North Carolina June 2015, after his Buford, Georgia medical office was raided by the FDA in connection with an investigation into GcMAF treatments. The Gwinnett Daily Post reports that agents from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, aided by the Georgia Drugs and Narcotics Agency, raided the Bradstreet Wellness Center. The FDA did not reveal to the paper why agents had searched Bradstreet's office.

Suicide was one of the few honorable things he did in his life other than serve in the Armed Forces. While the police ruled Bradstreet's death a suicide, several family members and anti-vaccine activists claimed he was murdered in connection with his criticism of vaccines. During the Investigation Discovery movie we see his normal daughter, who like Bradstreet's brother is intent to blame it on Bradstreet's "murder" on his younger trophy wife who refused to speak to the police during their investigation. The entire family is a bunch of sleazy grifters.

Bradstreet's family raised funds to investigate his death, including "an exhaustive investigation into the possibility of foul play." He searched the internet for countries with on extradition treaties with the United States, sent out text messages saying he would have to become a martyr for the anti-Vaccination movement and believed his phone was tapped by the Feds.

The Bradstreet Wellness Center's website described the practice's focus as "treating children with Autism Spectrum Disorder, PPD, and related neurological and developmental disorders," through the use of measured biomarkers. "Our mission is to positively impact children's lives by meeting their biological, behavioral, and nutritional needs," it stated. "Properly identify and address the underlying issues so that the child's brain, gut and immune systems can begin to function and heal." The Bradstreet Wellness Center's real program was shake down the parents of autistic children then torture their kids with bogus "treatments" just like any good Christian performing an exorcism on these "demon possessed miscreants" would. A local TV channel did an expose on the Bradstreet grifters who continue to collect money for their investigation of Bradstreet's suicide.

CHAPTER SEVEN

ANTI-VAXXERS WITH NAZI TIES

AFD (ALTERNATIVE FOR GERMANY) SWEETHEART SUZANNE HUMPHRIES

I first came across Dr. Suzanne Humphries in a Twitter Post from the AfD, the crypto Nazi German party that has lectures apologizing for Hitler and stating that world domination was not his ultimate goal. They follow me on Twitter. This led to an InfoWars program where Suzie was interviewed about death threats she had received via email. Fact of the matter was she really had someone email them to her to get publicity and make it seem like the pro-vaccination people wanted to kill her. The FBI became aware of this when one of the letters contained the case number of her police complaint that was confidential and only known to the cops and her. The host of this Fake News show claimed he had an unnamed person call the cops and they got the case number, then he changed this to the cops emailed him with the number. We never got to hear a recording of the phone call or see the email. The FBI said the threats came from her or from her household. She replied how could two autistic men, one 19, the other 42 have done this? Why is she living with two autistic men? Do they double team her? She never pressed charges because she would be pressing charges against herself and her accomplice.

NANCY “THE SKANK” BANKS

Dr. Banks is a favorite of the Nazi Bradley Smith know for running Holocaust Denial ads in college newspapers. Why would a Nazi like someone who would be regarded as a “nigger?” Because Banks stupidity, if it was acted upon, would case the deaths of millions of Africans. Banks explains that AIDS is caused not by HIV but by a global conspiracy in league with a variety of secret societies and Western governments to loot Africa of its diamonds and other natural resources while diverting attention from the plunder by manufacturing the AIDS epidemic. According to her theory, AIDS symptoms are actually caused by the antiretroviral AIDS drugs or by tuberculosis and other diseases afflicting mineworkers. This subterfuge allows diamond corporations like DeBeers to escape liability for hazardous working conditions while at the same time engaging in a vast scheme to depopulate continent. Banks draws heavily on anti-Semitic conspiracy theories. She quotes prominent anti-Semitic authors Eustace Mullins, who wrote for the crypto-Nazi publication The Spotlight. She also quotes Andrew Carrington Hitchcock, whose topics include “how more people died during the two day firebombing of Dresden than those that died in the concentration camps throughout the war, according to official Red Cross figures; how the Americans slaughtered Japanese troops who were trying to surrender” He also is a friend of David Duke, calls the Holocaust a Holofoax and has a topic of “the sexual depravity and pedophilia sanctioned by the Jewish Talmud.” Another of her favorites is Salvador Astucia author Opium lords: Israel, the Golden Triangle, and the Kennedy assassination. She is not afraid to openly accuse a Jewish conspiracy of genocide in Africa. She singles out Israel, the American Jewish Congress, and Maurice Tempelsman as examples of the wider Jewish conspiracy. Dr. Nancy Banks says Vaccines are dangerous and should be stopped. She further says, "Stop sacrificing your children to the Vaccine god."

THE WALDORF SCHOOLS

In April of 1919, Rudolf Steiner visited the Waldorf Astoria cigarette factory in Stuttgart, Germany. The German nation, defeated in war, was teetering on the brink of economic, social, and political chaos. Steiner spoke to the workers about the need for social renewal, for a new way of organizing society and its political and cultural life. Emil Molt, the owner of the factory, asked Steiner if he would undertake to establish and lead a school for the children of the employees of the company. Steiner agreed, and on September 19, 1919, the Independent Waldorf School (die Freie Waldorfschule) opened its doors. The school, that teaches a brand of Leftwing eco-fascism opposes vaccination. As a result at least 36 students have become infected with the disease at Asheville Waldorf School in the city of Asheville — a school that has among the highest rates of parents who received an exemption from the state's vaccination requirements. For the 2017-2018 school year, nearly 68 percent of the 28 kindergarten students at Asheville Waldorf received valid religious exemptions from vaccinations. Buncombe County, in the Western North Carolina mountains where Asheville is located, had the state's highest percentage of religious exemptions — with 5.7 percent of its 2,542 kindergartners receiving one.

Rudolph Steiner was a real sicko. He originally got his start with that con woman Helena Blavatsky and Henry Olcott, both occultists and members of the Theosophical Society. As a side note, Thomas Edison later joined them. After Blavatsky died, Annie Besant and Charles Leadbeater carried it on. Two things all of them had in common: They hated Israel and Jewish people and they hated the Bible and Christians. They were part of the late 19th and early 20th century "Occult Revival" that, I believe, was a counter-attack against Pre Millennial dispensationalism and Pro Israel Zionism. There was an overlap between the "Thule Society" of Europe and the Theosophists. The Thule Society members worked with the Nazis. Anyhow, Steiner ironically broke off from the "mainstream Theosophy" and founded his own group called "Anthroposophy". He was funded by the famous Waldorf tobacco company, Emil Molt. John Jacob Astor, the famous one, while being a friend of Nikola Tesla, supposedly got caught up in that 19th occult revival, along with others.

The Waldorf school people are nuts. They have the standard new age views and many are vehemently against vaccinations. They also do something called "biodynamic farming", and a source told me there are a lot of them in Wisconsin. They also have a lot of properties in New York City. They advocate this "biodynamic farming" which involves a revival of ancient occult paganism: They teach that people who garden and farm need to "consult and commune with garden gnomes and faeries" to help get good crop yields. Its right out of something the ancient Amalekites and Aztecs and others did. They think if farmers are somehow empowered by these gnomes, they do not have to use pesticides.

Steiner, like his fellow krauts, was a racist and characterized specific races, nations and ethnicities in derogatory ways. This includes descriptions by him of certain races and ethnic groups as flowering, others as backward, or destined to degenerate or disappear. He presented explicitly hierarchical views of the spiritual evolution of different races portraying the white race, European culture or Germanic culture as representing the high point of human evolution as of the early 20th century. On a number of occasions Steiner suggested that Jewish cultural and social life had lost all contemporary relevance and promoted full assimilation of the Jewish people into the nations in which they lived. This stance has come under severe criticism in recent years. Steiner was a critic of his contemporary Theodor Herzl's goal of a Zionist state.

CHAPTER EIGHT

CELEBRITY ANTI-VAXXERS

ROBERT DeNIRO BECOMES AN ANTI-VAXXER AFTER HIS WIFE
GIVES BIRTH TO AN AUTISTIC SON

REWARDING $100,000 TO ANYONE WHO CAN PROVE THAT VACCINES ARE SAFE.

Actor and Trump hater Robert DeNiro tried to show Wakefield and the Selz's anti-vaccination film at the Tribeca Film Festival that DeNiro started.

I have been affected personally, my son has autism. I love my child more than anything, I wouldn't change him. But...his life has been altered forever. If you are a scientist, let's see it, let's hear it. Everybody doesn't seem to want to hear much about it. It's shutdown. And you guys [speaking to news casters] are the ones that should be investigating [if vaccinations cause autism]. There is a lot of information about things that are happening with the CDC, the pharmaceutical companies; there are a lot of things that are not said. I, as a parent of a child who has autism, am concerned. And I want to know the truth. The movie is something that people should see, there was a backlash which I haven't fully explored and I will and I didn't want it to start affecting the festival in ways that I couldn't see but definitely there's something to that movie and there's another movie called Trace Amounts and these were there there's a lot of information about things that are happening with the CDC the pharmaceutical companies there's a lot of things that are not said I as a parent of a child who has autism I'm concerned and I want to know the truth and I'm not anti vaccine I want safe vaccines when you get it some people can't get a certain type of shot and they can die from it you know even penicillin so why should that not be with vaccine which it isn't so

Q. you said you went public for the first time saying that your year old son does have autism that have been a very private thing for you and part of the reason you wanted this film shown was to start that conversation absolutely do you believe you'll now have a role in that conversation going flexibly?

A. Yes because the thing is that the shut it down there's no reason to it if you're scientists let's see let's hear everybody doesn't seem to want to hear much about it it's shut down and you guys are the ones that should be the investigating do the investigating I think the film was controversial because people felt that the filmmaker, Andrew Wakefield, had been discredited he I'm not so sure about at the end of the day even him. It's the result of it's not about it's not questioning how people some people got autism how the vaccines are dangerous if not given a dangerous to certain people who are more susceptible and they don't nobody seems to want to address that or they say they've addressed it and it's a closed issue but it doesn't seem to be because there are many people who will come out and say no I saw my kid change like overnight. I saw what happened and I should have done something and I didn't so that there's more to this than meets the eye. Something changed overnight it my wife says that I don't remember but I might my child is autistic and every kid is different but there is something there there's something there that people aren't addressing and for me to get so upset here today on the Today Show with you guys I means there's something there that's all I wanted was the movie to be seen people. You can make their own judgment but you must see it and other there are other films other things that also just document and show you know it's not such a simple thing.

DeNiro was asked which pseudo-scientific theory he adhered to:

The obvious one is thimerosal which is mercury-based preservative but there are other things there that I don't know I'm not a scientist but I know because I've seen so much reaction about just let's find out the truth let's just find out the truth I'm not you know I'm not anti-vaccine as I say but I'm pro safe vaccine and there are some people who cannot take a vaccine and they have to be found out and warned that you just don't give a kid a bunch of shots and then something happens that some parents and even its documented say I knew I shouldn't have done it I knew I shouldn't have done it I talked to the doctor and he's a doctor I should listen I should listen I did it the next day the you know imagine how the parent feels the worry is that people who hear those words and wonder about it will then not have their child's vaccinated which has led to a higher incidence of things like mumps I don't know if those statistics are accurate I'm not the one to say but I would question even that there's a kind of a hysteria a knee-jerk reaction let's see as I say everyone should have the choice to take vaccines some places becoming mandatory but it does benefit the big drug companies well funnily I take that if you want to start to look at facts and statistics one of the things that you do need to look at in this movie vast is the contradictions of facts and statistics right off the top with without what's stated with what what the rise is with graph is and then people saying something different so you need to read the reviews of read the film.

DE NIRO IS UNHAPPY WITH HIS AUTISTIC SON

JENNY MCCARTHY, ANTI-VAXXER WHORE

JENNY MCCARTHY killed over a 1000 children by saying vaccines cause autism, as a result parents didn't vaccinate their children, leading to their death. First Jenny claimed she had watched her son almost die after a vaccination and regress thereafter. She reinvigorated her career by become a spokeswoman for the anti-Vaxxers whose son was allegedly able to beat autism:

We believe what helped Evan recover was starting a gluten-free, casein-free diet, vitamin supplementation, detox of metals, and anti-fungals for yeast overgrowth that plagued his intestines. Once Evan's neurological function was recovered through these medical treatments, speech therapy and applied behavior analysis helped him quickly learn the skills he could not learn while he was frozen in autism. After we implemented these therapies for one year, the state re-evaluated Evan for further services. They spent five minutes with Evan and said, "What happened? We've never seen a recovery like this."

Now Jenny claims Evan really has Landau-Kleffner syndrome, “a rare childhood neurological disorder that can also result in speech impairment and possible long-term neurological damage” that is often confused with autism. Landau-Kleffner syndrome is a rare disorder with around 200 cases diagnosed between 1957, when the syndrome was first identified. Landau-Kleffner syndrome is commonly diagnosed using an electroencephalogram (EEG). This is a scan that shows the brain's electrical waves. Other diagnostic tests may be used. When Evan showed signs of autism he must have been given an EEG. Why wasn't it detected back then? Jenny is funded by TYPHOID LISA DWOSKIN via a front group erroneously known as Generation Rescue.

CHAPTER NINE

POLITICAL ANTI–VAXXERS

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN'S four-year-old son, Francis Folger Franklin, died of smallpox on November 21, 1736. Rumors began to circulate claiming that the boy had been inoculated. Franklin published a denial and advocated inoculation. Franklin wrote the following:

“In 1736 I lost one of my sons, a fine boy of four years old, by the smallpox taken in the common way. I long regretted bitterly and still regret that I had not given it to him by inoculation. This I mention for the sake of the parents who omit that operation, on the supposition that they should never forgive themselves if a child died under it; my example showing that the regret may be the same either way, and that, therefore, the safer should be chosen.”

—The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, Benjamin Franklin (1791)

While still a medical student, Edward Jenner noticed that milkmaids who had contracted a disease called cowpox, which caused blistering on cow’s udders, did not catch smallpox. Unlike smallpox, which caused severe skin eruptions and dangerous fevers in humans, cowpox led to few ill symptoms in these women. On May 14, 1796, Jenner took fluid from a cowpox blister and scratched it into the skin of James Phipps, an eight-year-old boy. A single blister rose up on the spot, but James soon recovered. On July 1, Jenner inoculated the boy again, this time with smallpox matter, and no disease developed. The vaccine was a success. Doctors all over Europe soon adopted Jenner’s innovative technique, leading to a drastic decline in new sufferers of the devastating disease. Jenner would be in some deep shit today, for experimenting on a human being. What if James contracted smallpox and died? Vaccination, introduced by Jenner was based upon the use of a mild, attenuated virus (cowpox virus) which produced a local infection at the site of inoculation yet led to a high level of immunity to smallpox.

This procedure was called "vaccination" because the material used came from cows (Latin vacca, cow). Inoculation, however, is what was performed in 1736. Smallpox inoculation, or variolation, as it was often called, was carried out by inoculating the smallpox virus itself into the skin. This procedure, or variations of it, had been practiced since ancient times in Asia.

WAKEFIELD SUPPORTER: CONGRESSMAN DAN BURTON

The following autism hearing was called Representative Dan Burton, an Indiana Republican whose granddaughter has autism. He said she may have contracted it from a vaccine. Former Rep. Dan Burton:

Unfortunately, rather than considering the preliminary clinical findings of Dr. Wakefield as a newly documented adverse reaction to a vaccine, the CDC attempted to refute these clinical findings through an epidemiological review. While epidemiological research is very important, it cannot be used to disprove laboratory and clinical findings. Valuable time was lost in replicating this research in determining whether the hypothesis was accurate. Officials at HHS have aggressively denied any possible connection between vaccines and autism. They have waged an information campaign endorsing one conclusion on this issue where the science is still out. This has significantly undermined public confidence in the career public service professionals who are charged with balancing the dual roles of assuring the safety of vaccines and increasing immunization rates.

Increasingly, parents come to us with concerns that the integrity and honest public health response to a crisis has been left by the wayside in lieu of protecting the public health agenda to fully immunize children. Parents are increasingly concerned the Department may be inherently conflicted in its multiple roles of promoting immunization, regulating manufacturers, looking for adverse events and managing the Vaccine Injury Compensation Program, and developing new vaccines. Families share my concern that vaccine manufacturers have too much influence as well. That is something we continue to look into.

I recently asked the Centers for Disease Control to describe what would happen if MMR immunization rates dropped. According to CDC, if immunization rates dropped to the levels they were in 1989, we could see over 26,000 hospitalizations for measles, 8,500 cases of pneumonia, 135 cases of encephalitis, and 224 deaths. According to the CDC, even a drop in immunization rates of 10 percent could result in an additional 2 million kids being susceptible to measles. It would also significantly increase susceptibility to rubella and congenital rubella syndrome which can cause serious birth defects such as blindness, deafness, and stillbirths. Congenital rubella syndrome is also a well known cause of autism, a disease we all want to prevent. How tragic it would be if an unjustified vaccine scare caused some children to die, others to have permanent brain deficits, and still others to suffer from autism. I ask that the information from the CDC be placed in the record at the conclusion of my statement.

A group co-founded by the Church of Scientology sought former Rep. Dan Burton's help in lobbying Congress about certain psychiatric treatments. The Citizens Commission on Human Rights paid Burton $20,000 in the past three months, according to lobbying disclosure reports.
